

PHOTO BOOK: ROCK AND ROLL

One of photographer Lynn Goldsmith's first shots was of the Beatles' shoes—she felt shooting their faces would be “a betrayal” of her real love, the Stones. That kind of passionate fandom shines through in her new book.

“The only person I saw fly higher than Prince,” says Goldsmith, “was Gene Simmons—in a harness.”

Goldsmith calls Bruce Springsteen (here in 1978), whom she dated, “a fine human being.”

Debbie Harry (in 1978) taught Goldsmith to do hair and makeup.
